

Household Interests SOCIETY Personal Notes

PROMINENT WEDDING IN GLOUCESTER COUNTY

Miss Ellen Bayard Lee to Become Bride of John Mallinson Wilson.

A number of prominent guests have gone to Gloucester to-day for the marriage of Miss Ellen Bayard Lee, daughter of Rev. William Byrd Lee and Mrs. Lee, to John Mallinson Wilson, formerly of Scotland, but now of Roanoke. The ceremony will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the old Ware Church, which was built in 1800, and the father of the bride, rector of the parish, will officiate. Miss Maria Mason Tabb will render the wedding march and will also give a musical program during the half-hour the guests are assembling in the church.

In Charlotte, Miss Mary Pilkinton has had as her guests at the University of Virginia, fall formal ball, the Virginia-Virginia football game Misses Ellen Floyd, of Houston, Tex.; Margaret Scott, of Charlotte, N. C.; Emily Wade and Mildred Lafey, of Richmond; Lucile French, of Petersburg; and Della Page, of Amherst. Dr. Harry Faulkner gave a dinner at the Charlottesville Country Club in honor of Miss Pilkinton and her guest, Miss Sylvia Petrovich, of Russia. About a week, which was a very attractive affair.

Among Miss Deborah White's guests at the Country Club Tuesday evening were: Misses Emily Wade, Elena Floyd, Margaret Barringer, Lucile Mortimer, Florence Shickler, Dr. and Mrs. Tennant, Mrs. Russell-Shields, Dr. William Watts, Professor Armatstead Doble, Dr. Hugh Nelson, Harry Robinson, Sam Palmer, Harry Taylor, and Miss Smith. Miss Mary Pilkinton, and others.

Miss Woodward's wedding. The Japan Daily Mail, recently received here, contains the following interesting account of the Whitlock Woodward wedding, which took place September 17:

"A pretty wedding of the early autumn took place on Thursday afternoon at the Japanese estate villa of Dr. R. B. Teusler, at Hayama, when Miss Lettice Lee Woodward became the bride of Charles Evans Whitlock. Both bride and groom are from Richmond, Va., the former being a sister of Mrs. Teusler, whose guest she has been for the last few months. The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. John McKim, Bishop of Tokyo, and a special car attached to a train from Tokyo conveyed the guests from that place to the wedding. Automobiles meeting the party at Zushi and conveying them to Hayama, where on a terrace overlooking the sea the Teusler villa is situated.

The rooms were decorated with trailing greenery, palms, festoons of ivy and profusion of white roses and chrysanthemums. In the large reception-room, in Japanese style, the floor covering was pure white and at the east end a small altar decorated with green had been erected. The bride's party stood under a canopy of white and green. The ushers were John Reifelder and J. Russell Kennedy, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Stuart Teusler and Virginia Teusler, who wore white frocks. Mrs. Teusler, who was matron of honor for her sister, wore a white lingerie dress with trimmings of thread lace, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The flower girls, Misses Mildred Teusler and Elizabeth Nolting, the latter a niece of the groom, wore white dresses, and carried baskets of pink roses.

"The bride entered on the arm of her brother-in-law, Dr. Teusler, who gave her in marriage. She wore a wedding gown of white satin, made with a long train and decorated with orange blossoms. Her tulle veil was held by a chaplet of the same blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Her only jewels were the groom's gift, a beautiful necklace of pearls. At the altar the bride was met by the groom, who was attended by Lieutenant R. R. Keyser, United States Marine Corps. The Mendelssohn and "Lohengrin" wedding marches were played by Mrs. J. T. Swift, and there was a beautiful music by a Yokohama orchestra.

"Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock left immediately for an automobile tour and after a short stay in Milneohita, sailed for America. They will be at home in Richmond this winter. The bride's going away gown was of blue tulle with a smart little hat to match. Among the guests were: Mrs. W. C. Nolting, sister of the groom, who, with her young daughter, came from Virginia to attend the wedding; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kennedy, of Richmond; Mrs. McKim, Misses Hyde, Seldmore, Thompson, Somerville; Misses Wharton, N. L. Swift, and J. C. Caldwell; Messrs. G. and G. of Yokohama, and Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Wilson. The bride's mother, the venerable mother of Consul-General Seldmore, despite her ninety years, came from Yokohama for the ceremony, which was an honored guest on the occasion."

At the Woman's Club. "The Novel," will be the subject of an exceedingly interesting address to be made by Miss Ellen Glasgow before the members of the Woman's Club and their guests this afternoon in the club parlors at 4:30 o'clock. Decorations will be in fall flowers and tea will be served after the lecture is concluded. Mrs. John S. Munce is chairman of the afternoon.

Catholic Women's Club. The evening of October 26 there will be an interesting entertainment in the parlors of the Catholic Women's Club, 205 East Franklin Street, and club members will be out in full force to attend it. St. Luke's Kelley will be the speaker of the evening and a musical program will be rendered by Mr. Canepa and Miss Doria Mitchell, with Professor Hardy as the accompanist. Miss Canepa is chairman of the entertainment, which will be a very pleasing and charming event.

Charity Tea. Another charity event of this week will be the tea given on Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. W. E. Hoch for the benefit of St. Patrick's building fund. An interesting program has been arranged and all interested are invited to attend.

Charity Entertainment. This evening at 8:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Richmond Hotel, the first benefit concert will be held under the auspices of the Woman's Home Missionary Society and the personal direction of Miss Ethel Fontaine. It will be a very attractive event and the following program will be rendered: Duo—"La Forgia Del Destino"; Verdi Howard D. Bryant and Joseph Whittemore.

Piano Solo—Miss Charlotte Bibb Tenor Solo—"Andante" (From Violin Concerto)—Mendelssohn Miss Beryl Ferguson Reading—"The Villanelle" Frank Conby Soprano Solo—"Villanelle" Eve Del Acqua

Miss Minnie Volkman Duo—"The Bohemian" La Boheme Messrs Bryant and Whittemore Entertaining Entertainment. An entertainment under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of William Fox School, will be given Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the school auditorium. Dr. J. A. C. Chand-

Fashion's Decree

To-day's Dress Hint, with authentic note as to style and fabric.

Fur hands are among the most fashionable dress trimmings of the season, and there seems to be a decided preference for brown pelts. Thin hand-some tailored costume with sash and cape, is developed in blue broadcloth. It is trimmed with monkey skin, the fur outlining bodice and tunic. The fur may be substituted by one of the handsome fur-cloth with splendid results. To make the dress it requires 5 yards of 54-inch broadcloth and 3 yards of fur banding, or 1 yard of 40-inch banding.

Practical Review. Waist No. 5288. Sizes, 32 to 42-inch bust. Price, 15 cents. Skirt No. 5282. Sizes, 21 to 34-inch waist. Price, 15 cents.

The pattern will be mailed to any address by The Times-Dispatch Pattern Department on receipt of price.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Valentine will speak, the subject being "Compulsory Education." In connection with the speaking there will be a motion picture exhibit.

Of Interest Here. The China Press, Shanghai, China, contains the following of interest to Mr. Mosley's friends and relatives here:

"The Shanghai baseball team has lost its two star pitchers in Messrs. Thomas S. Mosley and J. Dillard Beck, both of the British-American Tobacco Company, who have left for new fields of endeavor, where their Saturdays and Sundays will be spent in contemplating 'how it will look in the box score'."

Mr. Mosley, who has been chief of the city sales force for the past five months, will take charge of the Hangchow department with a force of salesmen to cover the territory. Mr. Beck has departed for Hankow where he will be connected with the sales department with Hankow and other interior points as his field. Both men are popular among employees of the company and their going was made the occasion of several dinners."

IN AND OUT OF TOWN. Mrs. Shields-Russell, is visiting Mrs. Otto Theodore Hess at her home on Ohio Avenue.

Miss Mary Weaver, of Prince Edward County, will be the guest of friends here to-day, en route for New York, where she will spend the winter.

Dr. W. B. Hopkins, who has been in Vienna for the past year, has returned to Richmond.

Mrs. R. G. James, of Gordonsville, is the guest of relatives and friends in this city.

Miss Stella Pollard has been spending several weeks at Blacksburg as the guest of Miss Florence Hubert.

Mrs. J. H. Stone, of Williamsburg, will arrive this week for a visit to Mrs. Hugh Johnston in Richmond.

R. T. Dowden has returned to the city, after a trip to Atlanta, Ga., where he attended the convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

Dr. Brady's Health Talks

ROUND WORMS.

Round worms (ascaris lumbricoides), are found in the small intestine of man, frequently than any other parasite. A round worm resembles a common earth worm, only it is paler. The male worm averages four inches in length, the female six. Round worms occur more frequently in children, though not rarely in adults.

How they gain access to the intestine is not known. The eggs are swallowed by ingestion—the eggs are swallowed in food or drinking water, as in the case of the tapeworm. Any food which could possibly become contaminated by the excreta from a person who harbors round worms might easily convey the eggs.

Symptoms. A child or adult may have round worms for months or years and never show any indication of illness or discomfort. The worms occasionally are passed from the bowel of a perfectly healthy host.

A common picture in children who have worms is that of acute intestinal indigestion. This may be produced by worms or by errors of diet in a child who has no parasites. The symptoms are: Fever, vomiting or nausea, loss of appetite, nervousness and weakness, especially about the middle of the month, bright eyes, perhaps itching at the nose or frequent nervous twitches of the limbs, and a "worm" condition of the alimentary tract.

The only sure sign of worms is the passing of a worm from the bowel. In rare instances a round worm may be seen in the stool. Cases are reported in which a round worm has made its way into the gall bladder, and has caused obstruction of the bile duct.

Administering worm medicine, no matter what it is, can accomplish nothing unless the patient is kept in bed for a few days. Worm medicine distinctly does not dissolve worms in the bowel. It merely causes them to come away intact.

Send the patient to bed with only bread and milk for supper. First thing in the morning, give two teaspoonfuls of the fluid extract of spigella and two hours later give either a small tablet of castor oil, or a teaspoonful of the liquid extract of magnesium or a full dose of any other kind of laxative.

An hour after this the patient may resume eating. If no worms are passed in the stool, the patient may be sure that the worms are gone.

Questions and Answers. L. J. C. H. writes: I have read every one of your health talks, and find them very interesting. It has often been asserted that people eat too much, and I believe it. How can overeating be avoided?

Reply: By adhering to the good old formula: Eat when you are hungry and drink when you're dry. Don't eat to be sociable, or to please your wife, or to protect your health, or to avoid fainting. Eat to satisfy your appetite, and to enjoy your food.

Mrs. F. O. H. asks: Will you kindly state whether "milk of magnesia" is a good remedy to take for heartburn?

Reply: As heartburn ordinarily depends upon some particular food which the patient has eaten, such as shell fish, certain cheeses, etc., an active cathartic is usually needed. Milk of magnesia, though rather mild, is good for the purpose.

"Stenographer" writes: Will gas cause a pain in the stomach when walking?

Reply: "Stenographer" inserts a comma after the word gas, so we must pause there for an instant. Gas does not cause a pain. The trouble which causes the gas causes a pain. For instance, comma, in the case of a young stenographer such a combination of gas and pain, and a gas and pain, is a trouble—trouble with the appendix. Keep on walking, but make the doctor assure you your appendix is not preparing for a rebellion.

The Symmetrical Figure. BY LILLIAN RUSSELL. (Copyright, 1914, by Lillian Russell.)

In modern life a difference between the development of the two sides of the body is not only a matter of appearance, but of health. If we examine the finest of the human race, we find that the first objects which an able teacher of gymnastics proposes to do is to equalize the strength and skill of the two arms and legs. When you see either man or woman slouching along with one shoulder several inches lower than the other, you may know at once that they are exercising their body in any way. The first rule in all exercises is to first, rule in the general health by displacing the internal organs and forcing them to unequal pressure. One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

Frequently a want of symmetry in the body is due to the habit of sleeping always on one side. Such a habit should never be indulged. It is ruinous to grace, and has, moreover, an injurious effect on the general health by displacing the internal organs and forcing them to unequal pressure. One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

nourishing tonic should then be gently poured over the bowels. If you will send me a stamped addressed envelope I shall send you the formula for French tonic for children. This is a splendid tonic. After applying the tonic start a little plucking movement, beginning at the navel and working toward the neck. Take a pinch of flesh between the thumb and first finger, and mass the little hairs in a line through the center. This treatment makes the brows and keeps the hair where it should grow. The eyebrows become heavier, grey will look darker.

Dr. Brady's Health Talks

ROUND WORMS.

Round worms (ascaris lumbricoides), are found in the small intestine of man, frequently than any other parasite. A round worm resembles a common earth worm, only it is paler. The male worm averages four inches in length, the female six. Round worms occur more frequently in children, though not rarely in adults.

How they gain access to the intestine is not known. The eggs are swallowed by ingestion—the eggs are swallowed in food or drinking water, as in the case of the tapeworm. Any food which could possibly become contaminated by the excreta from a person who harbors round worms might easily convey the eggs.

Symptoms. A child or adult may have round worms for months or years and never show any indication of illness or discomfort. The worms occasionally are passed from the bowel of a perfectly healthy host.

A common picture in children who have worms is that of acute intestinal indigestion. This may be produced by worms or by errors of diet in a child who has no parasites. The symptoms are: Fever, vomiting or nausea, loss of appetite, nervousness and weakness, especially about the middle of the month, bright eyes, perhaps itching at the nose or frequent nervous twitches of the limbs, and a "worm" condition of the alimentary tract.

The only sure sign of worms is the passing of a worm from the bowel. In rare instances a round worm may be seen in the stool. Cases are reported in which a round worm has made its way into the gall bladder, and has caused obstruction of the bile duct.

Administering worm medicine, no matter what it is, can accomplish nothing unless the patient is kept in bed for a few days. Worm medicine distinctly does not dissolve worms in the bowel. It merely causes them to come away intact.

Send the patient to bed with only bread and milk for supper. First thing in the morning, give two teaspoonfuls of the fluid extract of spigella and two hours later give either a small tablet of castor oil, or a teaspoonful of the liquid extract of magnesium or a full dose of any other kind of laxative.

An hour after this the patient may resume eating. If no worms are passed in the stool, the patient may be sure that the worms are gone.

Questions and Answers. L. J. C. H. writes: I have read every one of your health talks, and find them very interesting. It has often been asserted that people eat too much, and I believe it. How can overeating be avoided?

Reply: By adhering to the good old formula: Eat when you are hungry and drink when you're dry. Don't eat to be sociable, or to please your wife, or to protect your health, or to avoid fainting. Eat to satisfy your appetite, and to enjoy your food.

Mrs. F. O. H. asks: Will you kindly state whether "milk of magnesia" is a good remedy to take for heartburn?

Reply: As heartburn ordinarily depends upon some particular food which the patient has eaten, such as shell fish, certain cheeses, etc., an active cathartic is usually needed. Milk of magnesia, though rather mild, is good for the purpose.

"Stenographer" writes: Will gas cause a pain in the stomach when walking?

Reply: "Stenographer" inserts a comma after the word gas, so we must pause there for an instant. Gas does not cause a pain. The trouble which causes the gas causes a pain. For instance, comma, in the case of a young stenographer such a combination of gas and pain, and a gas and pain, is a trouble—trouble with the appendix. Keep on walking, but make the doctor assure you your appendix is not preparing for a rebellion.

The Symmetrical Figure. BY LILLIAN RUSSELL. (Copyright, 1914, by Lillian Russell.)

In modern life a difference between the development of the two sides of the body is not only a matter of appearance, but of health. If we examine the finest of the human race, we find that the first objects which an able teacher of gymnastics proposes to do is to equalize the strength and skill of the two arms and legs. When you see either man or woman slouching along with one shoulder several inches lower than the other, you may know at once that they are exercising their body in any way. The first rule in all exercises is to first, rule in the general health by displacing the internal organs and forcing them to unequal pressure. One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

Frequently a want of symmetry in the body is due to the habit of sleeping always on one side. Such a habit should never be indulged. It is ruinous to grace, and has, moreover, an injurious effect on the general health by displacing the internal organs and forcing them to unequal pressure. One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

One should sleep quite alone on one side, back, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow. Nothing regular, without a pillow.

copper-colored pall. Nothing remained visible beyond arm's length.

Blinded, half-suffocated, unspeakably discomfited and bewildered, the broncho swung round, back to the blast, and refused to budge another inch.

Himself more than half-dazed, but still hounded by his nightmare vision of Judith, Alan dismounted to escape being torn bodily from the saddle by that hellish sand-blast, and seizing the bridle sought to draw the horse on with him.

He wasted his strength in that endeavor; the animal balked, planted its hoofs deep in the sand, stiffened its legs and resisted with the stubbornness of a rock; then, of a sudden, jerked its head smartly, snapping the bridle from his grasp, and flung away, scudding before the storm.

Pursuit was out of the question; indeed, the bridle was barely torn from his hand before Alan lost sight of the broncho.

For a moment he stood rooted in consternation as in a bog—with an arm upthrown across his face.

Then the thought of Judith recurred. Head banded and shoulders rounded, he began to forge a way into the teeth of the sandstorm, possessed by determination not to desert her in this hour of greatest extremity, though he died of the trying, bedeviled without mercy by his vision.

How long he fought on, pitting his strength against the elements, cannot be reckoned; he himself retained only the vaguest notion of the flight of time, when it was over; while it lasted, it seemed that an eternity was its span, no less.

In the end he stumbled blindly down a slight decline and was abruptly conscious that he had in some way found shelter from the full force of the wind. He stood in a wall of comparative quiet, though overhead and on either hand the tempest raged without ceasing, its voice the yammering of a legion of demons.

He staggered on another yard or two, breathing more freely, and blundered into a rough-ribbed wall of rock—some sporadic outcrop, he understood, whose bulk stood between him and the storm, whose lee he had created this way.

He thought to rest for a time, until the storm had spent its greater strength, but as he laid his shoulder gratefully against the rock and scrubbed the dust from his smarting eyes he saw what he at first conceived to be a hallucination—Judith, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

He stared incredulously, saw her recognize him, open her mouth to utter a wondering cry that was inaudible, and came quickly nearer. Her hand fell upon his arm with the weight of unquestionable reality. He was, standing within a yard of him, alive, strong, free, completely mistress of herself, in no way needing the help of his generous heart and hand.

THE KAUFMANN STORE

Charming Waists Of Crisp Voile

FIND favor by virtue of their wholesome beauty. The average woman will never be without at least a few late lingerie blouses. For traveling or business wear, for school or informal use, nothing else is so suitable.

An exquisite shadow lace vestee, the design carried out on either side with embroidered sprays, is the salient feature of this voile blouse. A handsome up-standing court collar in military effect and edging of Venice lace gives a final touch to a harmonious whole. $1.98.